

EDITORIAL

CIENCIA will launch three issues during 1995: April, August and December. This is our response to the high number of manuscripts submitted to our consideration for publication. CIENCIA is offering a space for high quality papers dealing with original research in Biology, Chemistry, Physics, Mathematics, Computer Sciences and others. We wish a successful year to the science community all around the world and hope to continue receiving original contributions. During these past two years we have reached one of the goals initially established by the editorial desk: to offer a fast communication link. In this sense, we now can ensure the publication of any kind of paper in about 14 weeks, from the peer-review process to press. One of the key steps to speed up the complete editorial process has been to have referees that assumed the challenge of reviewing manuscripts in less than six weeks. We deeply thank them, the main actors behind curtains. Our efforts will continue toward the second goal: CIENCIA must become a serious alternative for science people. Time will tell...

Romer